THE BUZZ AROUND TOWN

ON THE MARKET

It started with The Source. Then there was Avanti and Denver Central Market. When it comes to modern shopping and lifestyle districts, marketplaces are hot. And, with the launch of the new STANLEY MARKETPLACE, four is a charm. Housed in the former Stanley Aviation headquarters (2501 Dallas St., Aurora; next to Stapleton), the massive market of local retailers, restaurants and services (think gyms, salons and workspaces) is nearly at capacity—once filled, it will house 54 area businesses, including 17 first-time brick-and-mortar stores. “We call it the Stanley family,” says owner and developer Mark Shaker. “Any time someone signs a lease we say, ‘Welcome to the family.’ And we believe all of our businesses here are our family—they’re special.” Our recommendation: Set aside a Saturday, bring the kids (they’ll love watching treats being made at Miette et Chocolat) and come thirsty—you can carry any adult drink you order throughout the entire space. stanleymarketplace.com

MAKE A RUN FOR IT

Ready to put all that hard training to use? May 21 marks the 12TH ANNUAL COLFAX MARATHON, Denver's only 26.2-mile running race that starts and ends at City Park and leads you on an urban tour through Mile High Stadium, Denver Fire Station No. 1, seven miles of rivers, lakes and bridges and eclectic neighborhoods—with mountain views along the way. The Boston Marathon qualifier race is just one event during the weekend: a half-marathon, 10-mile run, 5K (held May 20), plus relay options are also on the agenda. Visit runcolfax.org for info.

COLORADO PROUD

Show your love for the Centennial State with the new collection of Colorado-centric trucker hats ($26 each) from Boulder-based HEADSWEATS. Choose from eight envy-worthy designs, made with woven and mesh fabrics. headsweats.com

ADULT SUMMER CAMP

Whether you're a beginner or a long-time rider, make this summer a memorable one by joining Tyler Hamilton for the HIGH ALTITUDE CYCLING CAMP AT PARK HYATT BEAVER CREEK. The Olympic gold medalist and eight-time Tour de France competitor will lead guests on private rides through the Vail Valley with one-on-one coaching along with head coach Jim Capra. Overall fitness, climbing and descending techniques, group riding skills, cross-training and more also will be covered at the June 3-8 camp. Rates start at $3,900 (including four nights of accommodations, two dinners at 8100 Mountainside Bar & Grill, one massage at Allegria Spa, daily breakfast and snacks and an official team jersey). beavercreek.park.hyatt.com

ON THE GO

As gardening season kicks in, fresh, local and organic produce are top of mind. Grab your own goodies from GROWER'S ORGANIC's new public offering of GO-BOXES. Similar to a subscription service, customers opt in four days before pickup and visit the grocery store and restaurant provider's Denver headquarters, 6400 Broadway, on Fridays and Saturdays to receive their boxes of seasonal fruits and veggies (complete with recipe cards, advice and cooking tips). A mini market also will be open, with items such as locally made tortillas, jams, eggs, milk, coffee and more. Small GOBOXES ($22 each) feed 1-2 people; large boxes ($32) are made for 3-4 people. Preview each week's contents at facebook.com/growersorganic. growersorganic.com

EAT, DRINK & BE (VERY) MERRY

Yes, in Colorado warmer weather means hiking, biking, fishing and other outdoor adventures. But it also means festival season, complete with beer, bacon and, mmmm, doughnuts. Three ways to earn your calorie burn:

May 13

1. DENVER BACON AND BEER CLASSIC

Sports Authority Field
baconandbeerclassic.com

A big bash with unlimited bacon and craft beer? Yes, please. More than 80 beers from regional breweries and 30-plus bacon-infused dishes from area chefs star, but you'll also find a bacon eating contest, games and more at this annual event (starting at $69).

2. WHISKEY THROWDOWN & DOUGHNUT SHOWDOWN

McNichols Building
whiskeydoughnuts.com
Peanut butter and chocolate. Burgers and fries. Whiskey and doughnuts. Some foods just belong together. And this fifth-annual tasting ($25-$115), focused on local craft distillers and doughnut vendors, is a match made in culinary heaven.

3. BEETHOVEN AND BREWS

1265 Boston Ave., Longmont
coloradosymphony.org
The Colorado Symphony teams up with Left Hand Brewing Company for a beer tasting, light hors d'oeuvres and a small ensemble performance by the symphony ($40-$65). In other words: music to our ears.
